

Celebrate good times, come on!

The UK's biggest food festival, 'Celebration of Food', is taking place across the whole of the South-West for the entire month of October and this year, for the first time, Bath is joining in the foodie fun. And of course, the team behind the event was super keen to ensure that The Queensberry's Olive Tree restaurant was fully involved.

So for the whole of October there's lots of extra reasons to pop down the stairs to our 2 Rosette awarded restaurant and feast away, and feel safe in the knowledge that you're supporting the very best local producers and growers in the process!

From Thursday 1st October til the 31st of the month there will be a special two course set lunch for just £10.00 per person. We're sure you'll agree that that price makes it a double reason to celebrate. And as our chef Nick Brodie is particularly passionate about seafood, we'll be running a 'Seafood Feast Week' from Monday 19th October until the 25th. Nick has been dreaming up the ultimate seafood based menu and you can come and indulge yourself and your dining counterparts with a fabulous five course "Seafood Tasting Menu", combining the freshest and finest seafood our region has to offer. The five course tasting menu is £45.00 per person and advance bookings are essential as this event will sell-out!

And River Cottage Founder and food campaigner Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall none the less is behind the campaign. He says, "Events such as 'Celebration of Food' are crucial...they educate shoppers and broadcast the message that local is best so having Somerset, Devon and Cornwall food businesses putting on events during October this year is really exciting."
